Dear Friends:

THE STOCK BOY AND BRENDA THE CHECKOUT GIRL

Kurtis the stock boy, was busily working when a new voice came over the loud speaker asking for a carry out at register 4.

Kurtis was almost finished, and wanted to get some fresh air, so he decided to answer the call. As he approached, the new check-out girl's smile caught his eye. They talked on and off for the rest of the evening. She was beautiful... a bit older than him (26 to his 22). And he was smitten.

The next day, he waited outside as she left the supermarket, and offered her a ride home. When he dropped her off, he asked if maybe he could see her again, outside of work. She simply said it wasn't possible.

He pressed and she explained she had two children and she couldn't afford a baby-sitter, so he offered to pay for the baby-sitter. Reluctantly she accepted his offer for a date for the following Saturday. That Saturday night he arrived at her door only to have her tell him that she was unable to go with him. The baby-sitter had called and canceled. To which Kurtis simply said, "Well, let's take the kids with us."

She tried to explain that taking the children was not an option, but again not taking no for an answer, he pressed. Finally Brenda, brought him inside to meet her children.

She had an older daughter who was just as cute as a bug, Kurtis thought, then Brenda brought out her son, in a wheelchair. He was born a paraplegic with Down's Syndrome.

Kurtis asked Brenda, "I still don't understand why the kids can't come with us?"

Brenda was amazed. Most men would run away from a woman with two kids, especially if one had disabilities - just like her husband and the father of her children had done.

But Kurtis was not ordinary. That evening Kurtis and Brenda loaded up the kids, went to dinner and the movies. When her son needed anything Kurtis took care of him.

When he needed to use the restroom, he picked him up out of his wheelchair, took him and brought him back.

There were more dates, and more movies... and as time went by, the kids grew to love Kurtis. And Brenda? Well, she knew that very first evening. This was the man she wanted spend the rest of her life with.

A year later, they were married and Kurtis had adopted her children, legally, and in his heart.

Since then they have added two more kids to their remarkable family.

So what happened to "Kurtis the stock boy" and "Brenda the check-out girl"?

Well, when they met, Kurtis was working at that grocery store to help put himself through college, hoping he might get a scholarship as an athlete. He did, and it worked out pretty well...

Because today, Mr. & Mrs. Kurt Warner and their four children now live in Arizona, where after playing as quarterback for the Rams in Super Bowl XXXVI, and being voted the NFL's Most Valuable Player twice, he is currently employed as quarterback for the Cardinals, and headed to this year's Super Bowl.
